VOLUME 1 — LEMON GROVE, CALIFORNIA, SEPTEMBER 9, 1948 — NUMBER 2

Church to be Completed by Christmas

Designed for serving 500 children and youth in Sunday School, weekday church school, drama clubs and social activities throughout the extended area of the Lemon Grove Community Congregational Church, Reverend Dan Apra and the Church Building Council announce that the first unit of the long planned building program, a two-story Sunday School and Social Hall, for which ground breaking ceremonies were recently held, is scheduled for completion by Christmas of this year. The property is situated at the corner of Church and Main streets.

"Our immediate need is a social hall and Sunday School classrooms", stated a member of the Building Council, in explaining the long range building program for which a successful financial campaign was conducted in 1946. "Then a new sanctuary just as soon as we can accomplish our goal", he went on. "We are undertaking to provide for a complete program of worship, christian education and social fellowship, and the inadequacy of our present quarters has long been recognised. Our expanding community will expand still more in the coming years, scores of new homes will be built and the incoming families will be looking for an adequate fully equipped church plant."

The present church of the Lemon Grove Congregationalists is over 35 years old, it was further explained by one of the members. "But even with our crowded quarters our membership has enjoyed a splendid growth and so has our Sunday school enrollment. With the new church plant, for which we are all so thankful, we should be able to serve about 500 children and youth in this beautiful new building. The years before us, therefore, present a tremendous challenge to this church, and when all the buildings are completed and dedicated we will have much to be thankful for."

Style of architecture for the buildings will be Rural Spanish, it was announced by Lemon Grove architect Russell Ray, who drew the plans and who will supervise construction. "The congregation and all who have aided in this undertaking may well feel proud of what this building program means to the community", he continued, adding, "Here is a much needed, modern church plant to serve a fast growing community, but in addition, it is an example of civic attractiveness which means much to us all; it is, as the officers of the church say, a community institution."

General contractor for the various building is Chris Ferguson, of Lemon Grove. Educated and trained in Scotland, Mr. Ferguson came to the United States during the early age of his career and had a prominent part in the construction of some of the skyscrapers in the New York City area, among which were the famous Metropolitan Tower and the Equitable Life insurance buildings in New York, the Prudential Life building in Newark, New Jersey. He also had charge of extensive building operations in Florida, removing to Lemon Grove in 1923.

September 20 New Date Set To Start School

Another week's vacation for the children of the Lemon Grove Elementary School District was announced today by Superintendent Byron Netzley. The new date is Tuesday, September 20 instead of September 13.

Superintendent Netzley stated that the decision for postponement was reached at a recent meeting of the school board. Two members voted for postponement and one against. The reason for the decision was that a large number of parents had indicated their intention of not sending their children back to school on the 13th because of the recent polio scare. The board's two members voting for postponement based their decision not in opposition to that of the Health Department but they felt it their duty to bow to the wishes of the people of the community. Schools in El Cajon, Lakeside and Alpine have also postponed their opening date to September 20. Mr. Netzley also announced a change of registration dates to the mornings of September 14, 15 and 16 at the Lemon Grove School.

Mission Rancho School Set to Open September 20

The new Mission Rancho parochial school will open September 20 it was announced today by Rev. Father Dan O'Donoghue, director of the school and pastor of St. John of the Cross church. It is expected that about 250 children will attend the school.

Campfire Marks Years Growth with Dinner, Program

Admission will be by invitation it was announced by the committee in charge.

"A very interesting program has been planned to present regional Campfire Executives and San Diego business men on the executive board in talks pertaining to the activities and purposes of the Organization as well as opportunities afforded through sponsorship, leadership and membership," stated Mrs. Sidney Close.

Accomplishments Of Campfire Girls Are Listed

"Be Friendly, Make Friends, Join The Campfire Girls!"

This is the slogan of the fall membership march which opens on September 15th. Campfire girls and their leaders are helping with the Community Chest Drive as Campfire is a Red Feather Agency. The motto of Campfire is "Give Service".

"We think the public would be interested in knowing just what was accomplished in activity and service work by groups I and II last year, a member of the Committee stated:

In September: Paper and magazine collection — 3 ton. Membership hike to Eucalyptus Park and Cock- out.

October: Bluebird cookie sale; booth at P. T. A. Carnival; Served punch and cookies to Lemon Grove Band; helped on Community Chest.

April: Trip to fish cannery; sold 1190 boxes of Campfire doughnuts; sold subscriptions to Lemon Grove News; appeared on P. T. A. program.

"The above monthly projects were the outstanding events for campfire to say nothing of the numerous interesting crafts the girls learned from age seven to age thirteen. Many interesting parties were also held for the different groups and Mother's Teas and parties were also given in Lemon Grove by these industrious young people.

"Our summer program of swimming and mountain and day camp and many places of interest to go to in San Diego was interrupted because of the Polio situation. but there will be camping both in the mountains and at the cabin in Balboa Park all through the year.

Large Crowd At Lively C C Meeting

Chairman Dave Bird of the Board of Supervisors was a guest of the Lemon Grove chamber meeting in the auditorium of the Forward club last week. Irrigation District chairman Levy of La Mesa was also present for an address on the water situation.

A special order of business of the chamber was the proposed change in the by-laws. President Pearce announced that recommendations for changes would be made by Jackson Ammons, who had devoted much time and thought to the subject, and who was asked to address the meeting and explain the by-law changes which he would recommend.

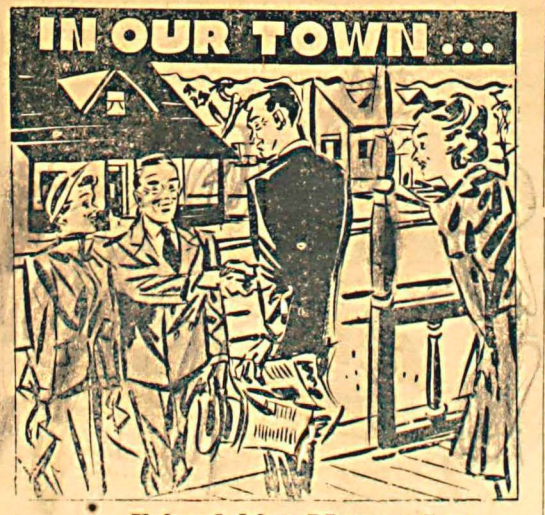
Mr. Ammons outlined the changes recommended by reading the present by-laws and stating the changes which in his judgment would enable the chamber to function more efficiently. When he had concluded his remarks and urged adoption of the recommendations, opposition from the floor was lead principally by Lee Thompson, who thought more time should be allowed for consideration of the subject. Dr. Gigliotti, Mrs. Van Gilse and others were of the same opinion. A motion was made that adoption be postponed.

This was followed by a substitute motion, with still another motion in the form of an amendment to the substitute.

In an effort to harmonize the various views and at the same time proceed in a strictly parliamentary manner with the rush of resolutions, it was suggested that the meeting avail itself of the serviced of Mrs. Samuels for years a teacher in the public schools and recognized as an authority on parliamentary maneuvres. Mrs. Samuels addressed the meeting, as did others.

A motion finally prevailed that the proposed changes be adopted minus the change in the amount of minimum dues and the qualifications for serving on the board of directors. These two points were put over to a future meeting and the session was adjourned.

President Pearce expressed the appreciation of the officers of the chamber for the large attendance, and in particular thanked Mr. Ammons for his work.



. . . . Friendships Mean a Lot

★ You know, it could safely be said that ours is a town that friendship built. Whether it is in business dealings or personal visits, a cheery atmosphere of friendliness always seems to be apparent. Guess maybe that's one of the biggest and best reasons anyone could have for being proud to call a place "the old home town." Guess that's the reason why everyone in "Our Town" says it's the best place in which to live, trade, and do business.

Business Men's Luncheon Set for Tuesday, 14

The next Business Men's Luncheon will be Tuesday, September 14 in the La Mesa Country Club House at noon. The main topic for discussion will be the possibilities of extending College Ave. to Radio Road.

Meet Monday to Plan Bazaar

The Vista La Mesa Women's Club will meet Monday, September 13th, at 7:30 p. m. in the Vista La Mesa Christian Church. Mrs. M. F. Fallis, president, will preside. Hostesses are Mesdames: Al Rovang, Al Sharp and Irving Small.

Residents of Vista La Mesa are invited to attend. More detailed plans will be discussed for the bazaar dinner to be given October 16th in the La Mesa Masonic Temple. Proceeds are to go toward the playground.

Chula Vistans Guests at Fine Lions Session

A large delegation of Chula Vista Lions were present last week at the regular session of the Lemon Grove Lions Club at VFW hall. Following a busy and hilarious session of the two service clubs at a dinner session, the Chula Vista members returned home, while the local club members proceeded to the Forward Club to attend in a body a meeting of the Lemon Grove chamber of commerce.

After much merry-making the Lions heard an addres by Lemon Grove Lion Ward, who described the aims, objects and purposes of Alcoholics Anonymous, in which he has been an active worker for many years. At the conclusion of Mr. Ward's talk there was prolonged applause, at the end of which Andy Benson, Lion president, turning to the speaker, remarked that the most sincere appreciation which those present could express was in their spontaneous evidence that the message of the speaker had made a deep impression on every one in attendance.

Lion Millbrodt of the local Piggly-Wiggly store presented the club with a handsome box of mixed groceries and fruits and these were auctioned to the highest bidder, along with two boxes of fried chicken. While conducting the auction, Mr. Millbrodt involuntarily furnished an item which brought several dollars. This was a priceless handpainted cravat which caught the eye of one of the Chula Vista spellbinders who proceeded to call for bids on the tie and it was knocked down at $3.95. All funds went into the coffers of the local organization, and those taking part were given a rising vote of thanks Thanks also went to a group of Lions who volunteered to do the complete job of redecorating the VFW hall, and to the Lion who donated the paint and the materials.

Back from Sierras

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ray have returned from two weeks at Camp Sierra in the high Sierras. They attended a ten day Ashram (Indian word meaning retreat). One of the most interesting highlights of the conference was Dr. E Stanley Jones, internationally known writer and friend of Gandhi, reading from his manuscript entitled "Gandhi, and Interpretation". Dr. Jones' book will soon be ready for publication.

Start Move for Coordinating Council Here

Wednesday night, September 8, plans were carefully considered for creating a co-ordinating council in the Lemon Grove School District. Members of several organizations met at 7 p. m. in the Sugar Plum Shop in the Grove Theatre. A steak dinner was served by the proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. Louis McGee. Immediately following the dinner the group presented Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Van Gilse with two arrangements of flowers and sang "Happy Anniversary" for their ninth wedding anniversary.

Mr. McGee was unanimously elected chairman of the discussion for the evening. Mrs. Burton Snyder was asked to introduce every one present and to act as temporary secretary. Those present included Mrs. Marguerite Mallow, Vice President of the Lemon Grove P. T. A., and Mr. Mallow; Howard Fallis, President of the Vista La Mesa Civic League and Al Capp, Vice President; R. M. Hendee, Publisher of the Vista La Mesa News; L. E. Leech, President of the Monterey Heights Civic Association and Mrs. Leech; Virgil Duea, Past President of the Monterey Heights Civic Association; Mrs. J. A. Van Gilse, Camp Fire Leader, member of the Junior Forward Club and Social Chairman of the Business Women's League; J. A. Van Gilse, President of the Business Men's Organization, a director on the Chamber of Commerce Board and a member of the Lion's Board of Directors; Mrs. Forrest Baxter, Girl Scout Leader and Secretary of the Senior Forward Club; Forrest Baxter, Secretary of the Lion's Organization; Brent Payne Publisher of The Lemon Grove Review and Mrs. Payne; P. L. Wills, Editor of The Lemon Grove Review and Mrs. Wills; Louis McGee, former Scout Leader and Mrs. McGee; Mrs. Burton C. Snyder, President of the Business Women's League.

Each person was asked to express his views regarding the advisability of organizing a co-ordinating council in Lemon Grove School District. The following ideas were given and briefly considered:

That an organization composed of at least one representative from each association should be created.

All community groups, churches and schools to be represented.

A calendar of all meetings and their respective activities should be set up to avoid confusion, misunderstanding and lack of proper support.

Major projects for the general good of all can be more quickly and efficiently worked out if there is unity.

Everyone was asked by the chairman to carefully consider the remarks of the evening and go back to his or her respective organization and encourage that organization to support the creation of a council. Another meeting to further consider this plan will be held Wednesday night, September 29th, at 7 p. m., it was announced.

First Issue of Review Gets Quick Results

Within fifteen minutes of the time of first release, the first issue of the Review had done it's first bona-fide public service. John A. Van Gilse had taken his copy and in glancing over the news items came across one which related that the Lemon Grove Nursery had been robbed the week previous. Earlier in the week Van Gilse had found an electric clock and an electric heater cached away in the rear of the Grove Theatre. Putting two and two together resulted in the Nursery receiving two of the stolen items back and the Review receiving full credit for an assist.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

WHY have we been reading headlines in San Diego newspapers which scream about Polio in terms of from 150 to 180 cases. Actually at the present writing, there is a total of 24 known cases in the entire city and county of San Diego. True, there have been over 170 cases reported during the first eight months of 1948 but they have all been discharged except the 21 who died and the 24 cases which remain. What I want to know is WHY Health Officer Doctor Alex M. Lesem and the three newspapers insist on trying to scare the public by headlines which make the ordinary person believe that 180 cases exist today. I have personally asked 200 people the question: How many cases of polio are there in existence today in the entire county of San Diego, including all cities and towns. The answer without exception, has been the figure in the headlines. When I told them the truth they were amazed. Are headlines too scarce; is Dr. Lesem seeking publicity; or is this just an election year? There have been over 60 deaths from automobile accidents so far this year. Only 21 have resulted from polio. Shall we keep all of our people out of automobiles? I have learned that germs cannot live in chlorinated water, so why close swimming pools? Many children attend the races, ball games etc. so why disrourage parties and movie attendance? Drive-in theatres are doing a good business with cars containing from 6 to 9 children. Is that healthier than being in a swimming pool, or a movie house that is well-ventilated?

At one church in a nearby town a summer bible school session was held; the rooms were small, the cars that brought the children were overcrowded. One boy out of 60 children contracted polio. This was in June, but no other child in the group has shown a single sympton. One child in Lemon Grove had polio, although since the first warning, he was carefully observed and confined according to all the rules of the Health Department. In another section of Lemon Grove, with a very heavy child population, one child contracted polio. She had been playing with 30 children continuously for weeks previously. No other child in the district has shown any signs of polio.

It's hard for me, a layman, to figure out how a disease like polio can be contagious. It is a disease which attacks the nerves and muscles, si it is difficult for me to believe it is possible for it to be carried from one person to another. A medical scientist in New York reported that after investigating many cases, he figured that if it is contagious, it can only be contracted by persons who live, eat and sleep in the same home. He gave examples to support his beliefs. If it can only be contracted by people living in the same home, isn't it possible that the person did not contract polio from somebody in the same house but rather, from SOME CONDITION, sanitary or otherwise in the house?

But we still want to know why those three newspapers don't print headlines which read "24 cases of polio active today" or "one case per 20,000 people."

Listen, Parents

By Mac McGee

Are you trying to raise your children from a psychological point of view? You are? Fine. I hope you have had the education and experience necessary for a proper application of the theory because otherwise, you may do more damage than good. It is freely admitted by most authorities that parents who have discarded the paddle for a psychology book are responsible for a tremendous number of delinquency cases.

Please don't get the impression that I believe that a paddle is a cure-all; nor do I believe that it is good policy to use a paddle as the sole means of discipline for children. I do believe, and I have proven in numerous cases with my own family and in the homes of my friends, that a paddle, hanging in a conspicuous place, doesn't have to be used so often, especially if it has been used consistently, during the very early years.

You, who have the responsibility of training our future citizens, must remember one thing which the psychologists ignore. Briefly, it is this: Your children must live in this world as it exists today. Your common sense tells you that you don't need to receive a ticket every time you approach a boulevard stop. You know the sign is there and you may have a ticket if you ignore it. Likewise your child doesn't require punishment often if he knows the punishment is there if he needs it. Also the psychologist who says you must explain to your child the reasons behind your orders or requests, fails to realize that when your child grows up his employer will not take time to explain to him in detail why he wants something done. Nor will a judge explain to him why he shouldn't have stolen the money or killed a person. Of course explanation is perfectly alright and should be given occasionally but at the same time, Johnny should usually obey you because he respects you and your wisdom. Life is very much a habit. Do you remember how long it required for your youngster to learn to tie his shoes, brush his teeth, etc. Finally it became a habit. Therefore, isn't it reasonable to teach him to acquire the habit of obeying those in authority even if it takes painful punishment to accomplish that habit?

Your entire world, religious, social, civil and vocational depends on your obeying certain rules or customs, promising harsh punishment or great rewards, according to what you deserve. Let's have our children grow into the kind of citizens who know how to take instructions willingly, cheerfully and in a co-operative manner. It is a hard job to paddle a child, it is brutal, just as the psychologists tell us, BUT it's a lot more cruel and a lot more brutal to allow that child to grow up believing in a world that does not exist, where he'll be unhappy, misfitted, and where his punishment is a lot harder to take; and where his elastic disposition of childhood has changed to a set disposition of adulthood which cannot so readily adjust itself or learn what he should have been taught as a child.

FARM NEWS
AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

CHECK NOW FOR NEMATODES

The best time to learn if the soil is infested with root-knot nematode where tomatoes are grown is during the growing season. Bernarr J. Hall, assistant farm advisor, University of California Agricultural Extension Service, says sick or stunted tomato plants should be examined for nematodes because a good piece of tomato land can become unprofitable in a short time if infected.

The same root-knot nematodes that attack the roots of tomato plants will also attack melons, string beans and some other plants. Gall-like swellings, or knots, appear on the roots, although the nematode itself, a small worm, cannot be seen with the naked eye.

When the presence of nematodes in the soil is known, corn, onions, or other plants resistant to nematodes can be grown. Crops that are susceptible to the nematodes may be moved to other sections. Nematodes are active in warm weather and do not bother garden crops in winter months.

Soil fumigation is used by growers in infested areas to bring the nematodes under control. This will reduce their numbers to the point that they will not be sufficient to damage the crop appreciably for one season. Where the nematodes are in the soil, it may be necessary to fumigate from year to year. Fumigants should be applied to the soil three weeks before the tomatoes are set out in the field, but the time to determine the necessity for fumigation is now, when the plants are growing.

DRY CLEANING PRECAUTIONS

Dry cleaning at home can be economical and satisfactory for many types of clothing, according to Mrs. Delphine D. Wilson, home demonstration agent. Better coats, suits and dresses should be sent to the commercial dry-cleaning plants, but many wool garments and non-washable rayons can be cleaned satisfactorily at home.

Mrs. Wilson points out, however, that certain precautions must be taken against fire. All dry cleaning should be done out of doors, away from buildings and dry grass. A warm, dry day is best as there is a possibility of fire from static electric sparks if the weather is cold and windy.

Only cleaning solvents which conform with Stoddards specifications should be used. They will burn if exposed to fire, but will not explode under ordinary conditions. Use carbon tetrachloride to remove spots. Never use gasoline and naptha as they are extremely explosive.

Keep cleaning solvents in labeled air-tight containers. Store them in a cool, dry place away from the sun.

Never use a washing machine for dry cleaning. Sparks from the friction may start a fire. Use a pan large enough to prevent crowding, and enough solvent to cover the garment. Wear rubber gloves, or cover your hands with a protective lotion. Be very careful not to splash the clothes you are wearing with solvent.

When garments have been cleaned, hang them outside to dry. Never dry them in the house. Be sure they are thoroughly aired and free from solvent before ironing.

After taking all these precautions, should a fire occur, do not use water. Smother the flames whit a wool blanket or with sand or loose dirt. If your own clothing catches fire, do not run. Lie down and roll on the ground, or wrap yourself in a blanket.

For further and more complete instruction on dry cleaning at home, ask for a copy of the leaflet prepared by Ethelwyn Dodson, Extension Specialist in Clothing at the University of California. It is available free upon request from the agricultural extension service office, room 404, U. S. Custom Bldg.

LIVE-VIRUS PNEUMOENCEPHALITIS LIMITATIONS

The live-virus pneumoencephalitis (Newcastle disease) vaccines recently released for commercial sale in California are not the whole answer to pneumoencephalitis control, Bernarr J. Hall, assistant farm advisor, University of California Agricultural Extension Service, pointed out that these products produce a substantial immunity in vaccinated birds but may cause some mortality in the vaccinated flock and almost always cause a marked drop in egg production if used on birds of laying age. For instance, after the use of one of these live-virus vaccines, one flock of pullets dropped from 50 per cent to 25 per cent production. On another ranch, in one house 90 eggs were being laid per day and ten days after vaccination the same birds produced only 26 eggs.

Hall further adds that since the live-virus pneumoencephalitis vaccines spread infection in a way similar to natural outbreaks, they should be used only on ranches or in areas where pneumoencephalitis (Newcastle disease) is known to be present and where the adult birds have an immunity as the result of a previous attack of the disease.

It is important to use all these vaccines as directed by the manufacturer. Attempts to "stretch" the dosage or develop shortcuts may bring real trouble.

FARMERS TAKE IN MORE CASH

Farmers have taken in more cash from marketing of farm products so far this year than they did a year ago, says E. C. Moore, farm advisor, University of California Agricultural Extension Service.

Both crops and livestock have brought in about four per cent more income than during the same period last year.

Moore quotes economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture who estimate that, in spite of the bigger gross income from marketings, the net income of farmers are taking in more cash, but they have less after paying expenses.

So far this year, hired labor has cost farmers about five per cent more than in 1947. Prices for farm machinery, building materials, fertilizer, and various other supplies and equipment have climbed steadily. Feed prices have averaged 16 per cent more.

In spite of the largest crop production in history, consumer demand is keeping prices generally at near record levels. Grain prices are going down because we have the second largest wheat crop this year, and probably a record corn crop. However, prices for livestock and livestock products have been going up. Economists think these offsetting price trends likely to continue for the next few months.

CAN YOU AFFORD MILK

It is generally agreed that milk is a source of many of the major nutrients required for human growth, but many consumers are wondering if they can afford milk and milk products at present high prices. F. W. Dorman, assistant farm advisor, points out again that pound for pound, milk and its products are better balanced and more nutritious than most other foods.

A recent report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration shows that a dollar spent on fresh milk will buy more of every essential food nutrient except vitamin A than the same dollar spent on chicken, round steak, veal cutlets, smoked ham, or loin pork chops.

No one food can be expected to provide everything the body requires, but milk comes as close to being a complete food as any. Among foods commonly consumed it is one of the cheapest nutrient sources. This is important today when all goods are high and consumers more cost-conscious than ever.

A tabulation of Bureau of Labor retail food statistics for 1947 shows that food prices as a whole went up 12.3 per cent during that period. In the same period dairy prices rose 11.6 per cent, which is less than the average price increase. For the longer period of June 15, 1946 to February 15, 1948, the price of meat went up 58 per cent, and cereals and bakery products were up 41 per cent. Compared with these figures the increase in dairy products, including butter, was small ... only 38 per cent. That, of course, is a substantial raise, but it helps prove the point that the dollar value of milk as far as nutrition is concerned is still greater than most other foods.

USE TOMATOES NOW

Eat tomatoes raw and fresh to get the most good from them, says Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. Delphine D. Wilson. They are rich in vitamin C — in fact one good sized, vine-ripened tomato will give you about half your day's quota, plus a generous amount of vitamin A.

Even when tomatoes are cooked or canned they still hold a large share of vitamins.

If you are interested in canning some tomatoes for use this winter, there is a circular on "Home Canning" prepared by Hilda Faust, Extension Specialist in Nutrition, University of California. Copies of this circular are available free of charge at the Agricultural Extension Service office, room 404, U. S. Custom Building.

AIR PROGRESS

Both Army and Navy have come up with startling developments in the air. The Army has proved that the B-36 can fly approximately 4,000 miles in any direction with a load of bombs and still be able to fly back to its base.

The Navy's new achievement is the successful launching of two of its P2V Neptunes—the plane holding the world's long distance mark of 11,235 miles—from the deck of a 45,000 ton carrier. These developments indicate that there is virtually no "ceiling" in the possibilities for air progress.

Prize Winning Garden Costs $3.00 Per Year

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Foty residing at 2034 Skyline Drive, Monterey Heights, are proudly exhibiting to their neighbors and friends a combination vegetable and flower garden which bears out the often heard remark that anything will grow in the Lemon Grove area. With an annual expenditure of $1.50 for seed and the same amount for spraying, the Fotys, on a very small backyard space, produce practically the year around not only an abundance of vegetables in a great variety, but an equally endless variety of plants and flowers, and they have ribbons and prizes from well known shows and exhibitions to prove their modest claims.

"Our greatest profit is the pleasure of raising right in our own back yard and having them practically the year round; all the fresh vegetables we want; more than we can use, in fact, as many of our good neighbors and friends well know. And when you read our story in the paper following this interview with a reporter for The Review, we'll not blame you if doubts creep in, but it's the truth, as we are sure many other citizens in this area know from experience. As a matter of fact we are sure that any number of people around us have made records in gardening and flower growing that would far outclass our efforts. We will, however, suggest that it would be difficult to get greater production or greater variety of all vegetables you want, and all the gorgeous flowers and plants that do so well in this section, on a smaller plot of back yard."

The Fotys have always been busy people. Mrs. Foty is a painter in her own right. Her painting, like her gardening, is a hobby. Mr. Foty, who for years was one of the leading road builders in the southwest, having constructed about 1400 miles of modern high-speed concrete roads in the states of Oklahoma and Texas during a twenty year residence in the state of Texas and ten years in the city of Dallas, has made a study of the more artistic use of concrete in building purposes, and examples of this are seen in the terracing and other concrete arrangements in the vegetable and flower garden.

"We won second honors at the La Mesa flower exhibit, and have some 200 ribbons which were awarded to us at various shows," Mrs. Foty admitted, "although don't get the idea that we are trying to pose as professionals or that we think our work in Lemon Grove cannot be equalled or excelled by any one who wants to tackle it. It's a hobby with us, but I guess it's true that if you figured up at the regular retail price the vegetables we get from this little patch in the back yard, the flowers we have, it would make quite a dent in the high cost of eating that you hear so much about. But I repeat, as all amateur gardeners know too well, the richest return from all this is the pleasure and relaxation of work outdoors. "We hope that the time will come when we will be able to enter in a Lemon Grove show the products of our little garden."

Here are the metes and bounds, the plan of rotation, dimensions of the various plots, showing how one Lemon Grove family do their gardening for a hobby on a very small piece of ground. Comments and suggestions from other garden hobbyists are invited and will appear from time to time in future issues of The Review.

"We have a small lot 65x100 sloping towards the rear. The house sets on the center third which takes 33 feet. We have 30 feet for front landscaping, and 37 feet for back yard, 13 feet of which is used for patio, rose garden and drying yard. The balance of 24 feet is used for growing vegetables.

"Let's start our gardening and see what we can produce on a strip of land 24x65 feet.

I divided this into four plots with a path between. In the center of each plot I planted a fruit tree, (3 oranges and one avocado.)

On January 23 in plot 1 I planted 2 rows of English peas, 1 row of lettuce, 1-2 row of carrots leaving the other 1-2 row for later plantings, 1-2 row rutabaga, 1-2 row beets, 1-2 row turnips and 1-2 row mustard greens and two rows of onion sets. This completed the first plot except on February 20th I planted the other 1-2 row of carrots.

On plot number 2 I planted 2 hills of squash the remainder of the row New Zealand spinach and swiss chard.

On February 20th I planted 1 row of lima beans, 1 row of cabbage, 1-2 row of onion seeds and 6 bell peppers. Later on I transplanted the peppers between the two rows of onions on plot number 1.

On about March 20th I finished this plot by planting 1-2 row of carrots, 1 row tomatoes, 1 row lima beans leaving one row for future plantings of limas. This completed the 2nd plot except on April 30th I put in the other row of limas also 1-2 row of carrots.

Plot 3 was reserved for flowers so on April 20th I planted asters, zinnias and marigolds. In this same plot I planted 1 row Kentucky Wonders and 1 row egg plant.

Plot 4 May 10th I put in a row of Kentucky wonders, 1 of limas and one row of okra. In the same row with the okra we planted parsley seed which we later transplanted to the flower beds at the side of the house. Also in this plot 1 hill of squash and one plant of New Zealand spinach. This completed my spring planting.

On May 30th I started back on plot number 1. Here I planted a row of cabbage between the two rows of peas, two rows of onion seeds where the turnip and mustard greens were. One row of tomatoes for fall use, two hills of squash, 1-2 row of garlic and 1-2 row of bib lettuce, also a part row of carrots. The balance was left for celery. No more planting until August 1st, then I planted a row of limas on plot 3, and a row of Kentucky wonders on plot 1.

On August 10th I planted another row of Kentucky wonders on on plot 4. August 24th I planted 5 rows of celery on plot number 1 completing the sceond planting.

On or about September 10th I will plant my winter garden such as English peas, carrots, lettuce, turnips, beets, onion seeds, swiss chard, cabbage, endive and broccoli.

This may sound like a lot of vegetables for two people, but we derive a lot of pleasure in sharing them with our neighbors and friends.

The profit is the pleasure of raising and having fresh vegetables when we want them, which is practically all the year round. The cost is about $1.50 for seed and about the same amount for spraying. Very little fertilizer is used as I make my own fertilizer by turning under all the vegetation and grass cuttings from the lawn.

Guest Editorial

By REV. DAN APRA

Havng arrived in Lemon Grove recently my thoughts can be little more than mere aspirations for what I hope will come to pass in my church specifically and in the community generally. There are certain indications which give me cause to belive as I do.

Strictly speaking my hopes are centered around the Community Congregational Church of which I am Pastor. But since we can grow and achieve our goal only if the community as a whole progresses my views are wider spread than my own particular sphere of influence.

It is greatly encouraging to view the stupendous growth in business and in homes in our community. But it is with a bit of alarm that I view the seeming lack of 100 per cent co-operation among the people of our community in regard to the necessary steps that must be taken in order to become more than merely an aggregation of homes, businesses and people.

The Lemon Grove community can continue to exist by itself in a small way as it has in the past if such is ordered by its people. It can on the other hand, become the center of a greater Lemon Grove Community which will embrace Monterey Heights, Spring Valley, American Homes, Vista La Mesa and other areas. If such is to be the case we must remember that in all endeavors in life there is a give and take that is necessary for good, sound and steady growth. We cannot expect these outlying areas to do all of the giving, nor can they expect such from us.

On of the greatest boosts in hope for the future of this community is the fact that the three major churches — the Baptist, the Catholic and the Congregational — are launcheed in building programs which are in keeping with the growth of the rest of this section. No community can be strong unless it is built upon a strong moral fiber, and as yet there is no institution in our community aside from the church that has as its main goal the strengthening of the moral fiber and character of its people.

Our faith in this community and in the mission of our church in it is indicated by the fact that after using our present facilities for some 35 years we are now building the first unit of our new plant. This building will enable us to double the seating capacity of our present sanctuary by having a unified service with preaching service and Sunday School for younger children to be conducted at the same time. In our new social hall we will be able to seat 250 at tables and 350 in chairs. This will enable us to expand our social, educational and civic activities to meet future needs for our people and community.

Our main goal, however, is to be able to be a true church of God, helping to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the unchurched and unsaved in our community and in giving the warm spirit of Christian Brotherhood and friendliness to all who choose to come to worship with us.

Before accepting the call to this field I was forced by the illness of Mrs. Apra to leave the ministry for 2½ years. It was my hope that I would be able to find a church that not only wanted to grow, but that also had the possibilities of growth. I have now found it and thank God for having lead me to this field.

All in all I would say that the possibility for a first rate community with first rate churches is here. It will depend on our desires, hopes and efforts.

P. S. If you have read this far, I thank you.

35 Lb. Yellowtail Pays Off

Catching the prize fish of the day, a 35 lb. yellowtail, was just the same as catching a new Dodge Sedan, for Irvin C. Mangles, of Upland whose above mentioned fish was the largest caught last Saturday in the Derby finals. W. L. MacQueen, Lemon Grove restaurant owner, fished on the boat Sirius in the derby and as Mac says, "We just weren't in the right spot at the right time." The skipper of the Sirius paid Mac and other derby fishermen aboard a compliment when he stated that he had never seen a harder working bunch of fishermen in his life. 276 anglers tried their luck at catching yellowtail in the derby finals and only 22 fish were caught all day, so Mac had plenty of company while drawing a blank.

Emperor Waltz Brings Bing to Grove Sept. 14

The nearest thing to looking for a needle in a haystack is searching for a popularity poll on which the name of Bing Crosby does not appear. In fact, it would be difficult enough to find one which has not been won by Der Bingle.

The drawing power of Crosby, currently co-starring with Joan Fontaine in Paramount's lavish Technicolor romance, "The Emperor Waltz," is international in scope. One of his honors is his selection as top money-making star from Hollywood in the International "Top Ten" poll of British exhibitors.

The greatest tribute paid to the singing star was his acquisition of the title of the "Most Popular Living Person" in a poll conducted by Jimmie Fidler. Bing won this tremendous tribute by a wide margin over Frank Sinatra and Pope Pius the Twelfth.

"The Emperor Waltz," arriving Tuesday at the Grove Theatre, is likely to bring new accolades to the lighthearted crooner. The film, with its gorgeously colored and majestic backgrounds, is Crosby's first genuine love story. However, Bing plays it in usual carefree, merry and melodic style-talking, singing, yodeling, whistling and dancing his way into the heart of Joan Fontaine.
